IN SENATE, JAN. 3, 1856.

COMMUNICATION

New York (State)

From the Secretary of State, transmitting a preliminary report upon the census of 1855.

STATE OF NEW-YORK:

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Albany, January 3, 1856.

To the Hon. HENRY J. RAYMOND,

President of the Senate.

Sir—I have the honor herewith to transmit a preliminary report upon the census of 1855, prepared by my predecessor in office, which will be found to contain all the statistics necessary to enable the Legislature to re-apportion the members of Assembly among the several counties, and to reorganize the Senatorial districts of the State.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
J. T. HEADLEY,
Secretary of State.

REPORT.

STATE OF NEW-YORK:

SECRETARY'S OFFICE.
Albany, December 31, 1855.

In pursuance of the requirements of chapter 64 of the Laws of 1855, the Secretary of State forthwith proceeded to appoint one or more marshals in each town and ward in the State, and to distribute to the several county clerks the blanks necessary for taking the census, and collecting the other statistical information required by the said act.

Returns have been received from each of the 1,744 marshals thus appointed, and the labor of condensing, classifying and preparing for publication the results, has been prosecuted with as much rapidity as the limited time and means, allowed for the purpose, would admit. The total population of each town and ward, with the increase or decrease since the census of 1845, upon which the present Assembly and senatorial districts were formed; the number of voters, aliens and persons of color not taxed, with the number upon which representation in the Legislature is based, are herewith presented, and will afford the information necessary to enable the Legislature to re-apportion members of Assembly in the several counties, and to reorganize the senatorial districts of the State.

The population of villages, the number of males and females, distinguished by white and colored, the number of single, married and widowed, the number of families, and owners of land, the number over twenty-one who cannot read and write, and who can read but not write, together with the statistics of school-houses and churches, of newspapers and other periodicals, with the number of deaf and dumb, blind, insane, and idiotic, have also been mostly prepared, and some progress has been made in condensing the agricultural and classifying the manufacturing statistics, but it is deeemed inexpedient to present these results until the whole be ready for publication.

There remains to be done, the summary of ages (distinguishing by sex,) professions and places of birth, and the completion of the statistics of agriculture and manufactures, the summary of marriages and deaths, and a general revision of the whole, with such comparative tables as may be deemed necessary for a full representation of the progress of population, resources, and progress of the State.

From the accompanying tables, it will be seen that the present population of the State is 3,470,059, being an increase of 372,665 since 1850, and of 865,564 since 1845. It is distributed among 910 towns and 13 cities, the latter being subdivided into 116 wards.

On each former occasion in which a census has been taken by this State, the names of the heads of families only were given, with columns for entering the number of males and females between certain ages, the number of aliens, colored persons and paupers, and those liable to military duty, the number of voters, of children attending school, &c., in each family; and the inquiries relating to manufactures were limited to some twenty different branches of industry, while all others were left unrepresented. In the present census, the name, age, sex, and birthplace of each person was required, with the professions of those over fifteen years of age, civil condition, color, years resident in present locality, and columns were prepared to designate voters, aliens, owners of land, those over twenty-one unable to read and write, and the deaf and dumb, blind, insane, and idiotic.

The annual returns of the militia to the Adjutant-General, of paupers and criminals to the Secretary of State, of children attending schools, academies and colleges to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Regents of the University, were deemed sufficient to justify their omission in the census, while instead of the statistics of a select number of manufactures, full returns were required of every branch of productive industry, and schedules were provided for noting marriages, with the ages of the parties, and deaths, with age, time, and cause of death. Articles of farm produce not before enumerated were included, and statistics of unincorporated literary and benevolent institutions, of periodical literature, &c., were for the first time made a part of our State census.

It will be remembered that the law directing the present census to be taken, required the entire labor of condensing and analyzing the returns of each marshal to be done under the direction of the Secretary of State, while on each former occasion the county clerks were required to prepare the summary of their respective counties, leaving only the general aggregates to be compiled in the Secretary's office.

Experience has shown that the results of a census prepared by many different persons, not acting in concert, and often with conflicting views of the construction to be placed upon the varied inquiries of the schedules, can never possess that uniformity and correctness which constitutes their value, and which can only be obtained by a systematic and careful summary in a central office. The relative expense of the two methods is believed to be decidedly in favor of the latter, while in point of general accuracy they scarcely admit of comparison.

The Federal census of 1850 cost, in this State, $114,474.95 for the collection of statistics, or three cents seven mills to each person. The expense of the present census is not yet ascertained from all the counties; but so far as obtained, it gives the corresponding expense at about three cents three mills to each person, while the information obtained is more extensive and varied. The office work of the census of 1850, cost over $300,000, or about $45,000 for the proportion of the State of New-York. An appropriation of $2,000 was made by the last Legislature to defray the office expenses of the present census, which has been mostly expended, and a further appropriation of $8,000 will be necessary to complete its preparation. As there are no funds at the disposal of the Secretary of State to pay the monthly wages of the clerks now employed upon this work, it is hoped the Legislature will take immediate measures to supply this want.

A change in the form in which the final results of this census are to be published is earnestly recommended. The huge, unwieldy and expensive volumes, sparsely printed upon one side of the paper only, which contain the results of our former censuses, besides requiring a much larger expense for their publication, are far less convenient for reference or preservation than if concisely arranged and compactly printed in a smaller and neater volume. In this respect, the former censuses of this State afford a humiliating contrast with the elegant and convenient publications of a similar kind of other countries.

E. W. LEAVENWORTH.
